POLITICAL NEWS.

Campaign Document.

We have been requested to reproduce, for the benefit of whom it may concern, the following editorial from the Richmond Whig of July 14, 1880. Recollect that this editorial appeared a week after the meeting of the 7th of July Convention. The Whig said:

"What in thunder has the National Democratic Committee got to do with us, or with the Funderers as it please, so that it does not hereby assume to meddle with the Readjusters. The less it has to do with the better. Mind it!"

"We are not standing on any National Democratic platform. We are not parading (falsely) under the name of the Democratic party. We are the Readjuster party of Virginia. We stand squarely on the platform and we are fighting Funderers, no matter whether they call themselves Democrats or Republicans. And we support the Readjuster nominees for President—Hancock and English—and for them, through the electoral ticket appointed by the Readjusters in State Convention on the 7th of July, we intend to cast the vote of Virginia."

"When we wish anything from the National Democratic Committee we shall apply for it. We shall be heard when we do."—Richmond Whig, July 14th.

[The Whig is the Whig's own.]

As an appropriate accompaniment of the above, we copy from the Southern Intelligencer—which of course our readers know to be the only Republican paper printed in the capital of Virginia—the following article, as it appeared in its issue of yesterday. We let the Democrats of Virginia make their own comments. We remind them, however, that Colonel Poplar, its editor, is one of the shrewdest politicians in the Republican party. I his party would follow his advice, it would almost always do the wisest thing possible for itself.

(From the Southern Intelligencer, August 9, 1880.)

AN OCTOBER CONVENTION OF REPUBLICANS—LET IT BE HELD.

The editor of this journal has in his possession a number of letters from Republican friends in various localities asking what under the circumstances is best to be done for the effecting of one great object in the impending presidential conflict—to wit, the defeat of the regular Conservative-Democratic Bourbon electoral ticket in this State. He has advised all such inquirers to await developments, promising that the first moment after reaching a conclusion himself they should be fully and honestly advised in the premises to the best of his judgment and ability. The time he feels has come for him to redeem that promise, and accordingly he commends that a convention or conference of Republican friends, to the number of five or more from each county in the State, shall meet in this city on or about the 10th of October next for the final determination as to what should be the course of that party of the Republican party in Virginia that honestly means to give neither directly or indirectly any aid or comfort to the Bourbon Democrats of the State, preferring the policy and rule of Mahone in all matters, national and State, to the continued abuse, injustice, and oppression of their old masters and tyrants. It is now known that the great campaign conference of Republican managers which has just been held in New York decided exactly as this journal advised a month ago to begin no active canvass on behalf of their presidential ticket in any southern State until after the October elections in Ohio and Indiana. Whether Garfield or Hancock will be elected to the presidency in November we cannot now know, but by the 10th day of October we shall have heard the thunder of enough guns in the great West to tell us the side on which is the heaviest artillery. Should the result be then and there such as to foretell the defeat of Garfield, this conference, assembling just at the right moment, can see it, take counsel of its consequences, warn their people at home of what is to come, and, by joining the Independents this year to crush out the regulars, insure next year to their friends of the Liberal party the control of the State government, and the consequent fair dealing of that government towards a defenceless Republican minority. Nor will the importance of this conference be in any degree diminished should the result in October be such as to break the neck of the Democratic party and end the campaign of Hancock as vigorously as poor Mr. Greeley's was ended in 1872, or as Mr. Tilden's would have been if he failed of carrying Indiana four years ago. In that event the one hundred or five hundred leading Republicans of Readjuster sympathies composing this convention or conference might in all reasonable probability arrange for securing a part, if not the whole, of the electoral vote for their candidate. In the face of a Republican triumph who can tell what the situation would bring forth? What if previously to that time the National Democratic Committee should have foolishly pronounced in favor of the Bourbon ticket and issued their edict or excommunication against the rebel Mahone and his insurgent followers? The Bourbons are the regulars unquestionably, and the Democratic authorities must so decide whenever called on. But if Hancock's managers should repudiate Mahone and his party, think you for a moment they would not be struck back at? Ah, we guess so.

Indeed, we are very sure the Readjusters feel but little concern about a Democratic victory in this nation at the present hour. Why should they, even if they carried the State, trouble themselves to organize a little college of electors at the Capital here and go through the force of casting the vote of the State for a defeated candidate? If we remember rightly the Democratic electors for the great State of Georgia declined to trouble themselves over a vain effort to elect Mr. Greeley, and he having been overwhelmingly defeated they obtained either in whole or part, from voting. We are by no means certain but the Readjusters here may do in certain contingencies as the Georgians did. Surely any interference by the lieutenants of Hancock to the injury of their canvass would absolve them from all obligation to give him the vote of the State, even though with it he might have a majority in the Electoral College. But without further speculation, prognostication, or prophecy, we will simply say that by the 10th day of October our next President will have been substantially elected. Night's candles by that time will have burnt out, and the misty mountains-tops of the East and North be delighted with the blaze of Republican or Democratic victories in the great West. Then will be the time for a grand convention of earnest, determined Republicans, by whose conclusions the bulk of their party will stand. But nothing less than an assemblage of the character described—representative men fresh from the people—would have any effect on the public mind. No committee of the party would for a moment answer the demands of such an occasion. Neither Senator Lewis's committee, nor General Wickham's, nor even Secretary A. A. Spitzer would, we suppose, venture at such a momentous and perilous time to give direction to the popular will. We, therefore, advise a convention or conference of some formal or authoritative sort to meet in the city of Richmond, or Petersburg on or about the time named, and we earnestly invite the consideration of Republicans in every section of the State to this important proposition.

SENSIBLE AND PATRIOTIC.

We expressed two weeks since our gratification at the fact that the Bridgewater Journal, a Readjuster paper, was supporting, as all good Democratic Readjusters should do, the regular Democratic electoral ticket, and nominated at the May Convention. After copying our article, the editor of the journal gives expression to the following sensible and patriotic remarks:

"The editor never has, nor does he at this time desire to conceal his personal advocacy of the cause of readjustment."

In the State issue we propose in the future to cling to our former principles, but when readjustment or anything else is dragged into the national campaign, irrelevant, as we believe it to be, and only used as the instrument by which a few office-seekers are to be rewarded, or by its abuse to accomplish their ambitious desires, even at the risk of the reputation of the State; then we give up all sympathy and co-operation, and express ourselves boldly in opposition to the scheme, and add our mite of influence in persuading those who share alike our honor or dishonor, not to be led into temptation."

We support the ticket that appears at the head of our columns, believing it to be the true Democratic ticket, upon the principles which have ever been made plain to all who would hear."

The corrections to which our attention has been called have been cheerfully made, and we cannot but express the belief that the "good report" which is expected from Bridgewater will be received by our friends after the election, and that our most sanguine hopes of the success of the Democratic party, not only in this State, but throughout the nation, may be realized in the election of Hancock and English."

A young man boasted that he had a well-stored mind, whereupon a young lady murmured: "What a pity we can find out where he stored it!"
